

From the January - June 2026 Issue: CXL-Tracer: Accurate, Full-System Memory Tracing on Commercial Hardware via CXL Memory

FEATURED ARTICLE

Trending Articles

- Orbital Edge Computing: Machine Inference in Space
- LLM KV Cache Storage Using CXL Memory
- InfAMAX: Bridging the Compute-Memory Gap in Intel AMX for Efficient LLM Inference
- QuArch: A Question-Answering Dataset for AI Agents in Computer Architecture

Announcements

2025 Best Paper Award Winners

ANNOUNCEMENT

IEEE Computer Society Publication's Impact Factors Announced

ANNOUNCEMENT

Seeking 2027 Editor in Chief

ANNOUNCEMENT

CAL Thanks 2025 Reviewers

ANNOUNCEMENT

In facing today's fast-changing computing world, CAL is a forum for the dissemination of short papers that present novel ideas and insights in topics of interest in computer architecture. Manuscripts submitted to CAL undergo a rigorous peer-review, driven by an editorial board of world-class experts, and with a fast turnaround time.

Sudhanva Gurumurthi

IEEE Computer Architecture Letters Editor-in-Chief

ComputingEdge

Stay up to date with the latest published articles.

Name*

First

Last

Email*

Country/Region*

Country/Region

Privacy Policy*

I agree to the IEEE Privacy Policy.*

I am human hCaptcha Privacy - Terms

SUBMIT

2.0
Impact Factor

530+
Peer Reviewed
Papers Published

2002
Established

Since 2002, IEEE Computer Architecture Letters has published peer-reviewed papers with high impact on all areas of uni- and multiprocessor computer systems, computer architecture, microarchitecture, and workload characterization.

ABOUT CAL

Copyright 2026 IEEE - All rights reserved. A public charity, IEEE is the world's largest technical professional organization dedicated to advancing technology for the benefit of humanity.